Option One: If you have an existing CITI Program account and can remember the username and password to log in, it allows you to log into CITI using CITI credentials and then if matched that CITI account with your Institution ID for a one-time link up. After that you will be able to log into CITI Program via the link. If you are not already affiliated with the institution from whence you came, the interface link-up will add the institution affiliation to your existing account.

Option Two: If you do not have an existing CITI Program account, you need to create one. Click “Create A New CITI Program Account”

You may then see this screen. We encourage New format, but either way is fine.

If you have logged in properly through Netbadge your name should appear here.
