Passcode: 568822

CE Activity Code – 147466
course Description: This series will address clinical practice regarding the diagnostic, therapeutic and professional approaches to the many areas of nephrology treatment and diagnosis. Using this conference to review, evaluate, and apply new technology and research with a multidisciplinary approach, will ensure patients receive timely treatment within established guidelines and result in improved quality of care. As a result of this activity, learners should be better able to practice collaboratively with primary care providers, subspecialists (Urologists, Hematologists/Oncologists, Cardiologists, Hepatologists), and other partners within the community, become familiar with available resources, and benefit from subject matter experts.

Target Audience: Physicians

Desired Outcomes:
At the conclusion of this activity, participants should be able to:

- Learn the development and application of advances and new principles of diagnoses in patient care and medical management.
- Develop competencies in system-based practice, professionalism, and practice-based learning to enhance patient outcomes and interdisciplinary work practices.
- Transform patient care and academic practice through the integration of new guidelines and discoveries.
- Understand current healthcare disparities and marginalized patient populations and address them through both personal and institutional change.
