

2019 John F. Anderson Symposium

Aniridia-PAX6 and Beyond...

An eye development and disease conference with leading research in aniridia and other congenital eye diseases, and potential treatments using targeted gene-based precision medicine

November 2-3, 2019

*University of Virginia
Darden Conference Center
Charlottesville, VA*

UNIVERSITY of
VIRGINIA

Students, researchers, faculty, clinicians, patients and their families: conference details and registration information available at <https://med.virginia.edu/ophthalmology>. For planning purposes please register by Oct 28, 2019 (no fee to attend sessions).

Speakers include:

*Ruth Asbery-Padan, Tel Aviv University
Brian Brooks, National Institutes of Health,
National Eye Institute
Seth Blackshaw, Johns Hopkins University
Dominique Bremond-Gignac, Université
Paris V Descartes, Hôpital Universitaire Necker
Sbukti Chakravarti, NYU Langone Health
Ales Cvekl, Albert Einstein College of Medicine
Ali Djalilian, University of Illinois College of Medicine
Arlene Drack, University of Iowa, Carver
College of Medicine
Melinda Duncan, University of Delaware
David FitzPatrick, University of Edinburgh,
MRC Institute of Genetics and Molecular
Medicine
Robert Grainger, University of Virginia
Cheryl Gregory-Evans, University of British Columbia, Eye Care Centre*

*Kevin Gregory-Evans, University of British Columbia, Eye Care Center
Zbynek Kozmik, Academy of Sciences of the Czech Republic
James Lauderdale, University of Georgia
Neil Lagali, Linköping University
Xiaorong Liu, University of Virginia
Peter Netland, University of Virginia,
Department of Ophthalmology
Marc Odrich, University of Virginia
Department of Ophthalmology
Elena Semina, Medical College of Wisconsin,
Department of Pediatrics
Veronica van Heyningen, University
College, London
Marla Weetall, PTC Therapeutics
Hao Zhang, Northwestern University*

This research symposium is supported by the Anderson Memorial Symposium fund, UVA Department of Ophthalmology, Department of Biology, Department of Neuroscience, and Brain Institute. Support is gratefully acknowledged from Vision for Tomorrow, the University of Georgia and PTC Therapeutics. We also gratefully acknowledge continued efforts for patient support and research by Aniridia Foundation International, Aniridia Europe, and The International WAGR Syndrome Association. Poster image courtesy of Veronica van Heyningen.

VISION FOR TOMORROW
FOUNDATION

OPHTHALMOLOGY

NEUROSCIENCE

 UNIVERSITY of VIRGINIA

BIOLOGY

GEORGIA

BRAIN INSTITUTE