Letter from the Chair

Dear Valued Faculty, Staff, Students, and Alumni of the Urology Department:

We're kicking off February with Match Day on the third of this month, and I know our whole department is looking forward to welcoming three new residents later this summer. Keep an eye out on the department's social media pages for the official announcement.

As you already know, Dr. Kim Maciolek will be joining us this fall once she finishes her current fellowship. We are so excited to have her on board! Check out page 6 to learn more about this awesome physician and the things she'll be doing at UVA Urology.

In addition to new faculty and residents, we will also be welcoming a new andrology fellow to the department this summer:

Dr. Kirsten Greene

Dr. Zhengran Jiang. Stay tuned for more information about our awesome new fellow in next month's newsletter!

Finally, thank you everyone who sent in pictures of their snow day adventures! It's great to see our department making the most of the cold spell. Spring is right around the corner, and I know we are all looking forward to warmer weather. As always, thank you all for everything you do for your patients and this department. UVA Urology wouldn't be the same without you.

Welcome Dr. Maciolek!

Kim Maciolek, MD, is currently pursuing a fellowship at Vanderbilt University in Endourology and Minimally Invasive Surgery with plans for graduation in June 2025. Originally from Wisconsin, Dr. Maciolek earned both an undergraduate degree in biomedical engineering and a medical degree from the University of Wisconsin - Go Badgers!

She also completed a research year at the University of Wisconsin studying metabolic management of stone disease. Following medical school, she completed her urology residency at the University of Virginia, where she honed her passion for stone disease and endoscopic surgery.

She is honored to again call Charlottesville home this summer. She looks forward to reconnecting with the best urology colleagues and family. She is excited to work together to serve our community, especially through the treatment of benign prostatic hypertrophy including holmium laser enucleation of the prostate (HoLEP) and complex kidney stone disease.

In addition to professional achievements, Dr. Maciolek is an avid home cook, kayaking enthusiast, and enjoys weekend adventures with her husband and corgi, Georgia Cannoli. We look forward to when she will officially be onsite later this year!

Snow Day Fun!

The weather in the month of January brought in a decent amount of snow for Charlottesville, giving our department members a chance to make some fun memories. Need ideas for your next snow day? Check out the following pictures to see how our department makes the most of winter weather!

Build a snowman!

Dr. Beller and her family made a winter friend this snow day!

Spend time with your pets!

Dr. Gillock snagged this cute festive photo of his dog (left). Dr. Corbett also got a picture of his dogs playing in the wintry weather (right).

Go exploring!

Dr. Corbett, his wife, and dogs (bottom left) got the chance to explore the snowy landscape. Jessica Shifflett's son, Jack (bottom right) also had fun adventuring in the snow, and like every cool explorer, he made sure he had his sunglasses!

Go sledding!

No winter adventure is complete without a sled! Andrew Christie's son, James (below), loved going for a ride.

Make Snow Angels!

Katie Matherlee's son, Parker, and daughter, Mallory (above), did their best to make snow angels in the crunchy snow.

Staff Educational Day at Fontaine Clinic

In January, UVA Urology's Fontaine Clinic launched their new staff educational day workshop. Their first meeting featured Dr. Henry, who presented on stones. If you're interested in participating in these workshops, please reach out to Kisha Woodson!
